ALEXANDER C. YARD.

HE AMPUTATED HIS OWN TOE.

Charles Heinzmann, twenty-five years old, died at his home in Union Hill on Friday afternoon from food poisoning, caused by cutting off the small toe of his left foot. Heinzmann had long been a sufferer from a troublesome corn, which he was in the habit of cutting with a razor. It grew worse spite of treatment, and finally gave up. So much trouble that he chopped the toe off with a chisel about two weeks ago. He neglected to have the wound properly treated, and his foot became greatly swollen. Physicians were called, but never diagnosed his case as hopeless. He died in great agony. A young wife survives him.

STRUGGLE WITH A FOOTPAD.
MILKMAN'S EARLY MORNING EXPERIENCE IN JERSEY CITY.

Clarence Armstrong, a milk dealer, had an exciting experience in Jersey City at 4 o'clock yesterday morning with a footpad. He stopped his wagon in front of the home of a customer and stepped off to serve milk, when a short, stout man gruffly demanded a drink. Armstrong replied, "Wait until I serve these customers and I'll give you a drink." The fellow, evidently, thought the milk dealer was

Franklin, who was driving the milk truck, was afraid of him, and as Armstrong was returning to his wagon demanded money. The milk dealer replied, "I have none." With an oath the fellow truck Armstrong a powerful blow on the jaw. The milkman would have fallen but for a tree. The blow stung him for a second, but he recovered just as the assailant advanced to strike him again, and caught the latter's arm down with all the force he could command on the head. The blow left a permanent mark on the head, and the blow stung thing for a moment. Armstrong quickly sprang to his wagon. The thief endeavored to clamber in after him. Armstrong seized his whip, and with one butt, heavily loaded with lead, beat the fellow on the head until he was stunned.

WATER CONTRACT MAY BE REVOKED.
MAYOR WANSEN'S SIGNIFICANT MESSAGE TO HAR-

The Jersey City officials are in a quandary. They have not recovered from the shock of Friday, when it was discovered that the East Jersey Water Company's engineers had erred and could not deliver the quantity of water promised, 20,000,000 gallons daily. Their supply was insufficient to serve one of the three mains, and the pumps at the city's plant at Levellie were left in motion to give the consumers supplied by that one pipe enough water. They are sinking two parts of the Pequannock River water furnished by the water company to one part of the objectionable Passaic River water furnished by the city. All surplus in the pipe flows into one of the reservoirs that furnishes old Jersey City, where the people are taking about nine parts of Passaic one part of Pequannock. The people who are enjoying the purer water are on Bergen Heights, Greenville, Bayonne, Kearny and Harrison. The default of the water company will enable Jersey City to retain as customers Bayonne, Harrison and Kearny, as the water company which was competing with Jersey City for the contracts is now out of the field until 1990, if the city does not cancel agreement, the company having no water to spare. The contracts with Bayonne, Harrison and Jersey are a source of profit to Jersey City. It receives $50 per million gallons and pays the water company only $43. The city officials, while they did not hesitate to say sharp things about the water company, were in doubt what action would be taken. Mayor Wansler said he had nothing to say, but he had not received the official report. A signifint telephone message was sent to the officials of Harrison from Mayor Wansner's office late yesterday afternoon. It had been agreed when the new water supply was turned on to allow Harrison to have the full pressure of the new supply for twenty-four hours to allow the officials to cleanse the water mains. They asked for this privilege yesterday. The answer was:

"We cannot let you use the water for twenty-four hours free of charge just yet. We have not accepted the new water supply from the East Jersey Com-

ARLINGTON AND KEARNY.
The visit of St. Clair McKelway, Editor of "The Brooklyn Eagle," to the Woman's Literary Club in Arlington, which is scheduled to take place on Tuesday afternoon, is to be made a great social occasion by the members of the club and its friends. Mr. McKelway is to give a lecture on journalism in the auditorium of the Arlington ub, and the Woman's Club has prepared a suitable reception for the lecturer by inviting the prominent men of Arlington to attend and help receive the guest. Members of the women's clubs in Rutherford, Newark and the Oranges have also been invited and have promised to be present. Yardley, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, will be present and make a brief address.
